

The current situation and the tasks of the class struggle anarchists

There are some characteristics which define this situation:

Finance is still the motor of the economy.

Workforce is being and will be continued to be re-organised into more intensive units of exploitation.

There is a tend to a concentration of sector monopolies through destroy social wealth and labour and under the direct control of the State,.

Structure of productive poles surrounded by depressed areas.

Continuous use of militarism and nationalism to feed wars demolishing the hopes of the exploited classes to improve their life and win back their autonomy.

Return of finance capitalism together with monetary policies to suffocate any economic recovery through waves of interest rates rises, credit clampdowns and social dumping.

So, under the bad effects of precarity on production and competitiveness, we become witnesses of a mass re-composition of the workforce into subordinate and highly flexible forms for strengthening supply and competition in macro-economic areas (European Union expansion, re-launch of Mercosur and ASEAN, WTO, G8, G20 etc.). We see also a concentration of production into monopolies on an international level (motor industry, telecommunications, agro-chemical/pharmaceuticals etc.), encouraging the creation of a network of sites and related corridors of capital and raw materials on which public and private investments can intervene impoverishing simultaneously the large areas in between. All this network is going to be saved by the State and Capital by any means.

With the birth of endemic wars since the last decade of the 20th century, generated mostly by the USA to control over system of imperialist dependencies, we become witnesses of an increasing use of militarism and nationalism (via their all religious and ethnic varieties) in order to use the control/de-stabilization of this huge area from the Middle East to Central Asia and to destroy the autonomy of the exploited classes by forcing them to side with a particular State, religion or elite to whom they entrust their present and future destiny of exploitation.

Being under this situation, together with the movement against the war and for peace it is more than vital to re-launch a dynamic and viable movement against any refreshed variety of neo-liberalism, precarity, exclusion, alienation etc.

Because the total independence on all political and economic institutions must be clear (no State, government or market has any interest in fighting capitalism but to enforce it.

Peace must be demanded, because it is the breeding ground of civil society and allows the development of struggles for the emancipation of the downtrodden classes.

We must try to rebuild the autonomy and the role of the exploited classes, the defence and reconstruction of their free and independent organisations, as a condition and indispensable factor in the struggles against capitalism and war in every country of the world.

We must therefore support, promote and assist every initiative aimed at re-building a large international movement against capitalism, denouncing the crimes of exploitation and bringing solidarity to working class organisations and local movements fighting against local or foreign bourgeois aggression.

We have to fight against war, demanding ceasefires, demilitarisation and disarming by every State and ethnic or religious elite or sect, who are united in their aim to destroy the whole working class.

We must form an international movement whose very base must lie in the grassroots social, labor, cultural, political and anti-militarist organisations, and also in its ability to federalise the struggles that develop, on a national and international level.

Therefore we are in favours of the horizontal creation of networks, coalitions and forums inspired by the practice of self-organisation, self-management and direct action, which represent the collective capacity for acting against the capitalist contradictions and violence.

We must contribute to the development of the class-struggle anarchist movement, by supporting its political networks and its capacity for social insertion in the struggles and fronts of struggle in support of popular power, for the spreading of the anarchist communist project.
